Whistler Waldorf School Code of Conduct & Expectations High School

Student Conduct

Cooperation and respect for everyone in our community are two of the core values of the Whistler Waldorf High School. We have unreserved respect for individual differences in socio-economic background, ethnic origin, gender, race, religion, and sexual orientation. All members of the Whistler Waldorf School community conduct themselves in a manner which shows respect for self and all other members of this community, whether they be adults or other students.

At the Whistler Waldorf School, we have a code of conduct. We expect students to behave in a respectful way towards teachers, adults, classmates and towards property. Each teacher is responsible for discipline in the classroom. Students will be approached in a dignified and respectful manner and asked to comply with these standards of behavior. If the code of conduct is not followed, we have discipline guidelines which will be followed. Our philosophy on discipline emphasizes the positive approach, in which the student is gradually led towards an experience of self-discipline.

Student Communication

All members of the Whistler Waldorf School community must conduct themselves in a manner which shows respect for self and all other members of this community, whether they be adults or other students. Demonstrating a lack of respect for another is an act that threatens the ability of the school to function as a learning community.

In order to maintain a community that is sensitive to and respectful of every member, the following guidelines are suggested in the event of behavior- verbal or physical- that seems inappropriate or provocative:

- Let the offending person or people know that you want the behavior to stop. Speak directly and give a clear message about how you feel and the request you are making.
- If you do not feel comfortable confronting the person alone, take a friend along or write a respectful letter.
- Speak promptly with an advisor or teacher about the situation. That person, in consultation with you, may refer the complaint to the appropriate person or group. If you do not feel comfortable speaking with an adult, take a friend along, or write a letter.

When a serious breach of respect occurs, the High School Chair, and / or the Student Support Executive Group Chair will act based on the circumstances, which could include education, counseling, suspension or dismissal.
